EXPLANATION
ON
REGIONAL REGULATIONS OF SUKOHARJO DISTRICT
NUMBER 5 OF 2016
ABOUT
FORMATION OF VILLAGE LEGAL PRODUCTS

I. GENERAL

Based on Law Number 6 of 2014 concerning Villages, Villages are villages and traditional villages or referred to by other names, hereinafter referred to as Villages, are legal community units that have territorial boundaries and are authorized to regulate and manage government affairs and the interests of local communities based on initiative, community, origin rights, and/or traditional rights recognized and respected in the government system of the Unitary State of the Republic of Indonesia. Viewed from a public law perspective, the village has the authority to regulate and manage the interests of the local community and this has implications for the village's authority to determine village legal products.

The Village Government needs law as an instrument to carry out government in the Village. Law in the sense of policy instruments is in the form of legal products, both regulatory and stipulation in nature. To support the realization of the formation of village legal products in a systemic and coordinated manner, guidelines for the formation of village legal products are needed.

Village legal products that are regulatory in nature are Village Regulations, Joint Village Head Regulations, Village Head Regulations and BPD Regulations. Meanwhile, Village legal products that are stipulations are Village Head Decrees and BPD Decrees. Village Regulations are stipulated by the Village Head after being discussed and agreed upon with the BPD as a legal and policy framework for implementing Village Government and Village Development.

The stipulation of Village Regulations is an elaboration of the various authorities possessed by the Village referring to the provisions of higher laws and regulations. As a legal product, Village Regulations must not conflict with higher regulations and must not harm the public interest, namely:

- a. disruption of harmony between community members;
- b. disruption of access to public services;
- c. disruption of peace and public order;
- d. disruption of economic activities to improve the welfare of Village communities;
And
- e. discrimination against ethnicity, religion and belief, race, between class, and gender.

Village regulations are processed democratically and participatively, that is, the drafting process includes the participation of the Village community. The Village Community has the right to propose or provide input to the Village Head and BPD in the process of drafting Village Regulations.

Joint Village Head Regulations are regulations stipulated by two or more Village Heads and are regulatory in nature. Joint Village Head Regulations are needed as a legal basis for inter-Village cooperation. Meanwhile, Village Head Regulations are regulations stipulated by the Village Head and are regulatory in nature. The content of Village Head Regulations includes material on the implementation of Village Regulations and higher statutory regulations.

The Village Head can stipulate a Village Head Decree for the implementation of village regulations, higher laws and regulations and in the context of implementing village authority that is in the nature of determination. The Village Head's decision is a concrete, individual and final determination.

BPD decisions take the form of determinations to determine the results of BPD deliberations in order to carry out BPD duties and functions. The BPD decision contains material resulting from the BPD deliberations.

II. ARTICLE BY ARTICLE

article 1

Quite clear

Article

2 Letter

a What is meant by "principle of clarity of purpose" is that every formation of a village legal product must have a clear purpose to be achieved.

Letter b

What is meant by "appropriate institutional principles or forming organs" is that every type of village legal product must be made by an institution/ official who forms authorized legal regulations. These laws and regulations can be canceled or null and void by law, if they are made by institutions/ officials who are not authorized.

Letter c

What is meant by "principle of suitability between content type and material" is that in the formation of village legal products, one must really pay attention to the appropriate content material for the type of statutory regulations.

Letter d

What is meant by "principle of implementation" is that every village legal product created must take into account the effectiveness of these laws and regulations in society, both philosophically, juridically and sociologically.

Letter e

What is meant by "principle of efficacy and usefulness" is that every legal product must be created because it is truly needed and useful in regulating the life of society, nation and state.

Letter f

What is meant by "principle of clarity of formulation" is that every village legal product must meet the technical requirements for the preparation of statutory regulations, systematics and choice of words or terminology, as well as the legal language being clear and easy to understand, so as not to give rise to various kinds of interpretations in its implementation.

Letter g

What is meant by "principle of openness" is that the process of forming village legal products starting from planning, preparation, drafting and discussion is transparent and open. In this way, all levels of society have the widest possible opportunity to provide input in the process of making village legal products.
